Mr. Worthington was a member of the distinguished Maryland family of that name, having been a lineal descandant. of Capt. John Werthington, who come to this country in 1651. He was a son of John S. Worthington, of Georgetown, and a grandson of Dr. Charles G. Worthington, founder of the Maryland Medical College.

Abandoned His Studies.

He was born May 12, 1831, and was a student at Kenyon College, Ohio. Before completing his course of studies be left college with several of his young friends, and started on a cruise across the ocean in a schooner yacht. The trip was planned as a lark and no one trip was planned as a lark, and no one knew of their departure until some days after they had gone.

The young adventurers crossed the ocean in safety, and after reaching Europe sailed to the Mediterranean Sea. They then disembarked and went on a sightseeing trip through the eastern part of Europe, and during their travels had many exciting experiences.

Mr. Worthington returned to the United States after five years, and made his home in Texas, where he bought a ranch. While there he met and married Rebecca Forbes Britton, daughter of Capt. Forbes Britton, U. S. A., then stationed at Corpus Cristi, Tex.

Led Ohio Company.

During the latter part of the civil war he returned to Ohio and organized a company of volunteers, of which he became captain. His command was assigned to temporary duty in Cincinnati, and before it was ordered to the front peace had been declared.

After the war Mr. Worthington bought a country home near Baltimore bought a country home near Baltimore, He resided there until 1875, when he came to Washington to live. During the administration of President Hayes he accepted the position of statistician in the Department of Agriculture. At that time General Le Duc, an intimate friend of Mr. Worthington, was Secretary of the department.

During their residence here Mr. and Mrs. Worthington took an active part in the social life of the city. At the time of reorganization he became one of its charter members and was also instrumental in the formation of the Sons of the Revolution.

Mr. Worthington is survived by Mrs. Worthington and three daughters, Mrs. Stephen Barnweil Trescot, and Rebecca and Ellzabeth Worthington, all of Washington.

The police are endeavoring to locate the relatives of the legless negro, supposed to be Andrew Johnson, who committed suicide yesterday by throwing himself in front of a fast-moving express train near the Pennsylvania Avenue bridge.

The man had papers on him which gave the impression that his name was Andrew Johnson and that he was from Little Sarah Greenberg Goes to Sleep Daughter of Former Surgeon General Niagara Falls, N. Y. Dispatches were sent to the chief of police of that place and he was asked to locate relatives of Johnson. Up to a late hour thatternoon no reply had been received. him that it was a dangerous path for a cripple.

The negro evidently planned to hurl himself in front of a train while in the K Street tunnel. He walked through, however without coming upon a train and changed his plan.

It is believed by the police that the man made up his mind to walk to alagara, but, after growing tired, decided to end his life.

When he reached the eastern end of the tunnel he rested for a short time, Hearing the third section of train No. 56, in charge of Engineer George Morgan, coming along the northbound track, he arose and started walking again. After he had covered a short distance the train was upon him.

He had been walking along the southbound track. As the train, running at full speed, reached a point about twenty feet ahead of him, he threw his crutches away. Wabbling on his wooden leg, he approached the other track and, just as the train was opposite him, swayed himself forward. The train did the rest. Policeman Cullinane, of the Fifth precinct, had the body taken to the station-house. While there is no positive need for the selection of a chairman prior to the convention, yet it is known that the President desires this important detail of the campaign settled. In pursuance of the campaign settled. In pursuance with this plan, an important conference was held at the White House last night, at which were present Secretary Cortelyou, Senators Aldrich, Spooner, Hale, Platt of Connecticut, Lodge, and Allison; Speaker Cannon, and Chairman Hemenway of the Appropriations Committee of the House. At this conference the chairmanship was discussed at length, as were various phases of the platform and campaign plans.

Talk Continued This Morning.

The conference was extended this norning by the calling on the Fresident of New York, who was closeted with the Executive a long time, giving the benefit of his sage and mature politiof the committee of arrangements of the national committee, who also took up with the President the details of tickets, assistant secretaries, and the temporary chairman; Senator Spooner, and porary chairman; Senator Spooner, and Representative Babcock.

The chairmanship matter has caused considerable worry to the Republican leaders, and much speculation as to the man to be selected. Those who have been named with even chances of selections are Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, who returned to the city last night for the purpose of attending the conference; Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Governor Franklin Murphy of New Jersey, ex-Governor Murray Crane of Massachusetts, ex-Secretary Cornelius N. Bliss of New York, and Representative Babcock.

Other Fish to Fry.

Sepator Adrich will have to make a fight to keep the Legislature Republican, so as to secure his own re-election. The personal friendship existing between the President and Senator Lodge caused many to think that he would be selected, though it has been known that he did not wish the position.

There were times when both Mr. Bliss and Governor Murphy were regarded as sure of selection, but at no time has the certainty prevailed that now attaches to the name of Senator Penrose, always prominently mentioned in connection with the chairmanship. It is regarded as a wise choice by the President's friends, who count upon great results from the astute Pennsylvania politician. Senator Scott has called a meeting of his committee on arrangements for Thursday, May 5. At this meeting, which will be held here, most of the preliminary details will be provided for. It is still regarded as certain that former Secretary of War Root will serve as temporary chairman.

Representative Adam Bede was again at the White House this morning to urge the privilege of the seconding speech for Mr. Cetton, of Duluth.
